FROM THE NURSE'S OFFICE

Cognitive stimulation.

It can be difficult to find activities that help your loved ones feel productive, capable and relaxed.

Activities such as puzzles, crosswords, coloring, singing and light exercises (stretch sitting) can help the brain stay engaged and active. For example, puzzles need to be easy on the eye and show familiar scenes.

Please encourage and help your loved ones do these activities the best they can. Please keep us updated on any medical change.

Thank you, Rosa Chavez, LPN

Greetings!

Thank you all for your contributions and support of our program. Your kind words are always appreciated.

Please let me know of any schedule changes, you may leave a voicemail at any hour. Also please keep us informed of any changes or new information such as someone falling at home. This information helps us be aware of new challenges.

We are looking forward to many fun activities in August!

We will be going to England on August 29 for our Living Room World Travel Group. Please share any photos or momentos if you have been there. Also- we welcome photo copies of old photos and are hoping to make a bulletin board. Please send one in with the name on the back. Everyone enjoys reminiscing and sharing stories!

If I may be of assistance please let me know.
